

Abengoa awarded the ICADE 50th Anniversary Medal

- The Universidad Pontificia de Comillas wishes to thank Abengoa for its help and support over 50 years

Seville, October 27, 2011.- Abengoa, the international company that applies innovative technology solutions for sustainable development in the energy and environment sectors, has been awarded the ICADE 50th Anniversary Medal by the Universidad Pontificia de Comillas.

The medal, which was presented by the Universidad Pontificia de Comillas to Manuel Sánchez Ortega, CEO of Abengoa, recognizes the company's help, support and collaboration with this institution in general and to Comillas ICADE in particular.

The ceremony, chaired by Alberto Ruíz Gallardón, Mayor of Madrid, and José Ramón Busto Saiz, rector of the Universidad Pontificia de Comillas, marked the end of the activities organized this year by the academic institution to commemorate its 50th anniversary.

Abengoa and the Universidad Pontificia de Comillas have had a close relationship for many years, which Javier Benjumea Puigcerver, founder of the company, placed special emphasis on as a former pupil of the ICAI School of Engineering.

In November 2002, the Focus-Abengoa Foundation and the university signed a collaboration agreement to create the "Javier Benjumea Chair on Economic and Business Ethics" in order to promote theoretical knowledge and responsible practices in the field of business ethics through research and education, to help institutionalize these applications in companies and organizations.
