Abengoa wins Polish contract worth €380 million

- The company will be responsible for the engineering and construction of a 450 MW combined cycle plant
- The plant will supply electricity, heating and hot water to around 10,000 homes

Seville, April 9, 2012. Abengoa (MCE: ABG), the international company that applies innovative technology solutions for sustainable development in the energy and environment sectors, has been selected by Elektrociepłownia Stalowa Wola to carry out the engineering and construction of the largest combined cycle plant in Poland with 450 MW of power. The contract signed with Poland's partly state-owned energy and gas distribution company is worth €380 million.

The plant, located in Stalowa Wola, some 200 km south east of Warsaw, has a gas turbine, a steam turbine and a heat recovery boiler for producing electricity. The plant also has a district heating system with 270 MW of thermal power, which will supply hot water to 10,000 homes in Stalowa Wola and nearby villages. This will increase the performance of the system as well as reducing costs and greenhouse gas emissions compared to traditional central heating systems.

The contract includes the engineering and construction of the plant, which will last for 38 months, as well as the maintenance and operation of the gas turbine for the first 12 years.

Abengoa, which has been present in Poland since 2006 and has its own offices in Gliwice, works for clients such as Alstom Power, EdF Polska, PGE, Energoinstal and PKN Orlen.
