Abengoa launches the second edition of the Focus-Abengoa Sustainable Business Prize

- The company presents this award as a way of recognizing its suppliers' commitment to sustainable development.
- The prize has two categories, one for small and medium size companies (less than 50 employees) and another for large companies (50 or more employees).

November 22, 2013- Abengoa (MCE: ABG.B/P SM /NASDAQ: ABGB), the international company that applies innovative technology solutions for sustainability in the energy and environment sectors, has launched the second edition of the Focus-Abengoa Sustainable Business Prize, which seeks to recognize those suppliers that have demonstrated their commitment and made a contribution to sustainable development.

The company presents this award to highlight outstanding actions by its suppliers. It is open to all companies that have been suppliers to Abengoa, or any of its subsidiaries in any country during the last 24 months, and that are implementing or have completed initiatives in the last two years that have contributed to social development and reducing environmental impact. The prize will be awarded in two categories – one for small and medium size companies with less than 50 employees, and another for large companies with 50 or more employees.

The jury for the Focus-Abengoa Sustainable Business Prize will be comprised of José Borrell Fontelles, vice-chairman of the Focus-Abengoa Foundation and Abengoa's International Board, and chairman of the jury; Cristina García Orcoyen, managing director of the Entorno Foundation; Germán Granda, general manager of Forética; José Luis Blasco, managing partner for climate change and sustainability services at KPMG; and María Mendiluce, director of the World Business Council for Sustainable Development (WBCSD).

The committee is looking for projects or initiatives that promote responsible business management and stand out for their originality, innovative nature, impact and leadership.

Companies that wish to participate should complete the form on the competition website (<http://sustainability.abengoa.com>) and return it before December 11, 2013 to the e-mail address rsc@abengoa.com. When returning the form, please
